Summary: Primarily architectural drawings by Arthur B. Heaton for residential, commercial, industrial, religious, educational, recreational, health care, transportation, and organizations' buildings in a wide range of styles located in the Northwest and Northeast quadrants of Washington, D.C., and surrounding suburbs. The majority of the drawings were executed from 1910-1950. Among his commissions were single detached houses, some for prominent clients; groups of houses in the Burleith section of Washington, D.C.; apartment houses in Lyon Village, Arlington, Virginia; Park and Shop, an early shopping center; Capital Garage; additions and alterations for the National Geographic Society; the Bishop's House at the National Cathedral; buildings for Sidwell Friends School; utility facilities for PEPCO; and wartime housing for the U.S. Government. Materials document various phases of the design process, from preliminary sketches to working drawings, including numerous full size details, to correspondence and specifications relating to building projects. The archive also includes some architectural drawings, landscape architecture drawings, and engineering drawings by other draftsmen and creators, including E. Burton Corning, Costigan, and Thomas W. Marshall.

Processing History

The Heaton architectural drawing archive (Library of Congress) was processed by Library staff. This finding aid contains unverified data from old container lists transcribed by Tori Cox. It contains data compiled from catalog records by Tori Cox in December 2020 and by Kristen Sosinski in May 2021. Finding aid encoded by Kristen Sosinski in June 2021. Titles and date ranges were devised by Library staff. Not all of the groups of material are described at the same level of detail. Seventeen drawings for the Altamont were processed and added to the archive by Brett Carnell in 2022.

Additional materials that form the Heaton architectural drawing archive (Library of Congress) not included in this finding aid:

Biographical Note

Arthur B. Heaton was one of Washington D.C.'s most prolific and versatile architects of the first half of the 20th century. Heaton began practicing as an architect in 1894, as an apprentice in the office of Frederick B. Pyle. He worked with Paul Pelz from 1895 to 1896, for William J. Marsh from 1896 to 1899, and for Marsh & Peter from 1899 to 1900. In 1900, Heaton opened his own office and joined the American Institute of Architects in 1902. In addition to operating his own practice, he served as Supervising Architect of the Cathedral of Saint Peter and Saint Paul (Washington Cathedral) for at least one decade. His drawings demonstrate a proficient drawing style and fine attention to detail. Heaton continued to practice as an architect almost until his death in 1951.

Scope and Content Note

Primarily architectural drawings by Arthur B. Heaton for residential, commercial, industrial, religious, educational, recreational, health care, transportation, and organizations' buildings in a wide range of styles located in the Northwest and Northeast quadrants of Washington, D.C., and surrounding suburbs. A substantial portion of the architects' commissions, but not all, are represented in the collection. The majority of the drawings were executed from 1910-1950. Among his commissions were single detached houses, some for prominent clients; groups of houses in the Burleith section of Washington, D.C.; apartment houses in Lyon Village, Arlington, Virginia; Park and Shop, an early shopping center; Capital Garage; additions and alterations for the National Geographic Society; the Bishop's House at the National Cathedral; buildings for Sidwell Friends School; utility facilities for PEPCO; and wartime housing for the U.S. Government. Materials document various phases of the design process, from preliminary sketches to working drawings, including numerous full size details, to correspondence and specifications relating to building projects. The archive also includes some architectural drawings, landscape architecture drawings, and engineering drawings by other draftsmen and creators, including E. Burton Corning, Costigan, and Thomas W. Marshall.

Specific media or processes represented include graphite, ink, charcoal, watercolor, colored pencil, stat, blueprint, diazo print, photomechanical print, Van Dyke brown print, and pastel.

Some ADE UNITs have additional materials to the drawings that are filed separately. If present, these series are noted at the end of the ADE UNIT's summary with the following options: specifications, photographs, and/or miscellaneous supplementary materials. These materials are not item inventoried but can be requested from a librarian while doing research in the Reading Room.
