	Audiocassette type: Microcassette.
	Local ID number: 1755479
	Rosenbaum was the director of the U.S. Department of Justice's Office of Special Investigations (OSI). The OSI has historically been primarily focused on acts by Nazis abroad before and during World War II, and who subsequently entered, or seek to enter, the United States illegally or fraudulently. It then takes appropriate legal action seeking their exclusion, denaturalization (revocation of U.S. citizenship), and/or deportation. In 1997 his office provided key detective work in an interagency investigation into looted Nazi gold and other stolen assets. Rosenbaum and OSI historians were able to trace shipments of victim gold to European countries, including Switzerland.
